Welcome Message

On behalf of the Canadian Remote Sensing Society – Société canadienne de télédétection (CRSS-SCT), it will be our pleasure to welcome you to Toronto for the XXV ISPRS Congress. This event marks the return of the showcase ISPRS event to Canada (last held in Ottawa in 1972) and to North America (last held in Washington in 1992).

The Congress theme “From Imagery to Understanding” captures very well the role of ISPRS activities. Imagery, in its many forms, is our primary data source. The use of imagery distinguishes us from other disciplines and greatly defines how we work. Understanding can be interpreted as the end goal of the work we do: achieving greater awareness about the planet and its diverse peoples to meet the many challenges we face.

Congress Format

The Congress will be an in-person event. It will feature top level international scientists presenting their latest research, in particular leading-edge developments in artificial intelligence, machine learning, BIM and much more!

There will be dedicated working groups devoted to topics such as:

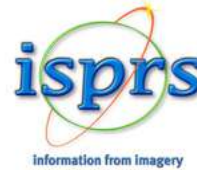

- Multi-sensor Modelling and Cross-modality Fusion
- AI/ML for Geospatial Data
- Autonomous Sensing Systems and Their Applications
- Digital Construction: Reality Capture, Automated Inspection, and Integration to BIM
- Remote Sensing and Inclusive Development to Leave No One Behind
- Geospatial Environment and Health Analytics.

About Host Organizations

Canadian Remote Sensing Society
 Société Canadienne de Télédétection

The Canadian Remote Sensing Society—Société canadienne de télédétection (CRSS-SCT) is a fully independent, not-for-profit professional society that provides a focal point for leadership and excellence to advance the remote sensing field. The CRSS-SCT maintains partnerships with other organizations in remote sensing, across Canada and abroad.

The Federal Government's Canada Centre for Remote Sensing (CCRS) was created in 1971 with Dr. Lawrence W. Morley as founder and first Director General. Under Dr. Morley's leadership, the first Canadian Symposium on Remote Sensing was held in February 1972 in Ottawa. CCRS has played a very active role in many aspects of the Canadian Remote Sensing Society ever since.

The CRSS-SCT represents scientists, professionals and students working in remote sensing in Canada and is the Canadian Ordinary Member of the ISPRS. Since 1972 it has organized the world's longest running national series of remote sensing symposia, the Canadian Symposium on Remote Sensing (CSRS). In 2026, the CSRS will be held in parallel with the ISPRS Congress.

The International Society for Photogrammetry and Remote Sensing (ISPRS) is a non-governmental organization that promotes international cooperation between the worldwide organizations with interests in the photogrammetric, remote sensing and spatial information sciences. Established in 1910, the ISPRS is the oldest international professional umbrella organization in its field, which may be summarized as addressing "information from imagery".

The scientific activities of the ISPRS are organized into five Technical Commissions (TCs):

- I. Sensor Systems;
- II. Photogrammetry;
- III. Remote Sensing;
- IV. Spatial Information Sciences; and
- V. Education and Outreach.

Its scientific meetings of various sizes take place over a four-year cycle, culminating with the Congress, the largest international conference devoted to photogrammetry, remote sensing and the spatial information sciences.

ISPRS 2026 Organizing Committee Members

The Congress is being led by individuals and volunteers from the CRSS-SCT. The vision for this Congress is made possible by the willingness to share ideas, information, and the science with which we work across international borders. We look forward celebrating the many achievements of the ISPRS and its members and set the stage for the future as the member organizations of the ISPRS and the fields it represents come together in Toronto in 2026. The information that we develop is critical: our science and technologies underpin much of the world's economic and environmental activities. The story of "imagery to understanding" bears telling – and we plan to work with the rest of the world to tell it in Toronto in 2026.

The Venue

As the largest city in Canada and fourth largest in North America, Toronto is an ideal location to host the Congress. Toronto is a well-connected air transportation centre with direct flights to many destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, South America and North America, and is well resourced in terms of accommodation, restaurants and entertainment. Travel within the city is very easy thanks to the dedicated train service from Pearson International Airport and Union train station downtown and the city's extensive transit network of subways (metro), streetcars (tram) and buses. The city is located close to many other attractions such as Niagara Falls and the wine region of the Niagara Peninsula that makes for an ideal day trip. Toronto is a very safe city to visit – named in 2021 as the second safest city in the world.

The ISPRS Congress will occupy the entire South Building of the Metro Toronto Convention Centre (MTCC). This exclusivity will allow for branding & sponsorship and many common areas where the delegates can network with their peers. MTCC is located in the heart of Canada's largest city & is globally acclaimed as a premier choice for event planners around the world. Featuring 41,063 sq. meters of exhibit space, 77 meeting rooms, multipurpose ballrooms and a state-of-the-art theatre for performing arts and corporate events.
